Maritime Empires - National Maritime Museum (Great Britain) - 2004

Britain's empire was sustained by shipping. These studies are concerned with a range of enterprises, both home and colonial, in which shipping was involved, relating to goods, people, ideas.

The Forgotten Expedition, 1804--1805 - Trey Berry - 2014-08-11

"The team of the "Grand Expedition," as it was optimistically named, was the first to send its findings on the newly annexed territory to the president, who received Dunbar and Hunter's detailed journals with pleasure. They include descriptions of flora and fauna, geology, weather, landscapes, and native peoples and European settlers, as well as astronomical and navigational records that allowed for the first accurate English map of the region to be reproduced. Their scientific experiments conducted at the hot springs may be among the first to discover a microscopic phenomenon still under research today."--Jacket.

The Forgotten Expedition, 1804--1805 - Trey Berry - 2014-08-11

"The team of the "Grand Expedition," as it was optimistically named, was the first to send its findings on the newly annexed territory to the president, who received Dunbar and Hunter's detailed journals with pleasure. They include descriptions of flora and fauna, geology, weather, landscapes, and native peoples and European settlers, as well as astronomical and navigational records that allowed for the first accurate English map of the region to be reproduced. Their scientific experiments conducted at the hot springs may be among the first to discover a microscopic phenomenon still under research today."--Jacket.

The Lewis and Clark Journals - Meriwether Lewis - 2004-11-01

The diaries and personal accounts of William Clark, Meriwether Lewis, and other members of their expedition chronicle their epic journey across North America in search of a river passage to the Pacific Ocean and describe their encounters with the Native American peoples of the West, exotic flora and fauna, and amazing natural wonders.

The Lewis and Clark Journals - Meriwether Lewis - 2004-11-01

The diaries and personal accounts of William Clark, Meriwether Lewis, and other members of their expedition chronicle their epic journey across North America in search of a river passage to the Pacific Ocean and describe their encounters with the Native American peoples of the West, exotic flora and fauna, and amazing natural wonders.